SUBJECT: SIG Meeting on Sanctions Policy, August 24

SUMMARY OF CONCLUSIONS

Secretary Shultz as Vice Chairman convened the SIG-IEP to discuss options for pursuing the President's sanctions on pipeline-related exports to the USSR. Relevant to the meeting was the French act of requisition on August 23 directing Dresser-France to complete the delivery of three compressors to the Soviets.

CIA briefed on the situation in Europe. The pipeline may still be delayed and its costs increased, but Soviet reallocation of manpower and equipment from domestic gas programs will enable West European deliveries to begin in late 1984. Among the allies, France has taken the lead in opposing U.S. sanctions. The UK, the FRG and Italy while less aggressive are expected to follow suit.

Under Secretary Buckley briefed on the French situation and on the status of pipeline orders in allied states. Mr. Unger followed with an assessment of Dresser's action in Federal District Court and the prospect of using denial orders as sanctions against Dresser and other potential violators. The merits of various legal approaches were discussed.

Under Secretary Buckley reviewed the four options in the discussion paper. Speaking for State, he supported a combination of options 2 and 4. Defense responded that an effort should be made to convince the French to avoid a violation; France derived benefit from technology links to the U.S., yet was taking actions to invalidate private contractual arrangements. Secretary Shultz asked for other agency comments. USTR emphasized the relevance of overall trade policy, and supported options 2 and 4. CEA concurred. Justice, Treasury, OMB, Agriculture, and Commerce also supported USTR. CIA stated that the Europeans are convinced that U.S. sanctions will not be upheld in their courts or in international law.

Secretary Shultz summarized the discussion in three points: (1) If the President's policy is challenged, the U.S. must respond credibly and effectively. In this regard, the denial order has a number of merits: it is flexible, can be tailored to different circumstances, buys time, and can be understood by Europeans more readily than can certain less predictable legal actions. (2) The U.S. aim should be to avoid expanding the confrontation. (3) The SIG takes a positive attitude toward making a further appeal to France before a shipment occurs, and toward pursuing a combination of options 2 and 4 in case a shipment occurs.

Secretary Shultz asked if all members agreed with this summation. There being no dissent, he concluded the meeting.
